Source A-The First Printed Books

The earliest kind of print technology was developed in China, Japan and Korea. This was a system of hand printing. From AD 594 onwards, books in China were printed by rubbing paper-also invented there-against the inked surface of woodblocks. As both sides of the thin, porous sheets could not be printed, the traditional Chinese 'accordion book' was folded and stitched at the side. Superbly skilled craftsmen could duplicate, with remarkable accuracy, the beauty of calligraphy.

Source B-Print comes to Europe

The production of handwritten manuscript could not satisfy the ever increasing demand for books. Copying was an expensive, laborious and time consuming business. Manuscripts were fragile, awkward to handle, and could not be carried around or read easily. Their circulation therefore remained limited. With the growing demand for books, woodblock printing gradually became more and more popular. By the early fifteenth century woodblocks were being widely used in Europe to print textiles, playing cards and religious pictures with simple brief texts.

Source C- Religious Debates and the Fear of Print

In 1517, The religious reformer Martin Luther wrote ninety five Theses many of the practices and rituals of the Roman Catholic Church. A printed copy of this was posted on a church door in Wittenberg. It challenged the church to debate his ideas. Luther's writings were immediately reproduced in vast numbers and read widely. This led to a division within the Church and to the beginning of the Protestant Reformation Luther's translation of New Testament sold 5000 copies within a few weeks and a second edition appeared within three months.
